ARC RATED / UL CERTIFIED WORKWEAR

NFPA 2112-2023

NFPA 2112-2023 Standard on Flame-Resistant Garments for Protection of Industrial Personnel Against Flash Fire provides minimum requirements for the design, construction, evaluation and certification of flame resistant garments. The standard was developed to protect industrial workers, primarily in oil, petrochemical and manufacturing industries. Flash fires are unplanned exposures that typically last three seconds or less and spread rapidly through combustible dust, gas or vapors of an ignitable liquid. The standard does not cover fire entry or structural fire fighting activities and provides no personal protection from chemical exposures.

NFPA 70E

NFPA 70E standard addresses electrical Arc hazards in the workplace and was developed to protect electrical workers who work on or near equipment that is capable of generating an Arc flash. Employers are required to complete their own testing to assess each workers Arc hazard exposure rating. The level of Arc exposure is referred to as the Arc Thermal Performance Value (ATPV) or cal rating. These ratings are used in the chart below to help determine the best personal protective equipment each worker should use. Each garment should be clearly marked for which Flash PPE Category it complies with.

| CAT RATING // PROT    | CAT RATING // PROTECTIVE CLASSIFICATION  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
|-----------------------|--|--|--|--|--|--|--|--|
| ARC FLASHCATEGORY | REQUIRED MINIMUMATPV VALUE (CAL/CM2) |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
| 1                     | 4  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
| 2                     | 8  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
| 3                     | 25                                       |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
| 4                     | 40                                       |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |

This chart, based on specific job tasks, ranges from Cat.1 (low risk) to Cat.4 (high risk) and requires FR clothing with a minimum Cat. rating of 4. The Cat. category is used to determine the necessary Cat. rating of a garment worn during a given job task. Each of our garments are labeled with the appropriate Cat. rating they meet.

The ANSI/ISEA 107 American National Standard for High-Visibility Safety Apparel and Accessories is a voluntary standard with guidelines that provide practical instruction regarding both reflective material and garment design to enhance worker visibility. ANSI/ISEA 107 presents three performance classes of garments and identifies garment types based on expected use settings and work activities being performed.

ANSI TYPE R

Type R offers a Performance Class 2 and Class 3 – garments specifically designed for use on roadways – and is often the choice of other construction and transportation applications due to the high presence of moving vehicles and equipment.

ANSI CLASS 2 & 3

ANSI certifications are designed for garments intended for activities where greater visibility is necessary during inclement weather. It also covers workers who perform tasks that divert their attention from approaching traffic or puts them in close proximity to vehicles traveling 25 mph or higher.

ANSITYPE E

Applies to retro-reflective equipped pants or shorts, designed to be worn in combination with either Class 2 or Class 3 tops. When worn in this manner, the ensemble is rated as Performance Class 3. When worn alone they do not meet any of the ANSI class requirements.

EN ISO CERTIFIED

The EN ISO Standard for High-Visibility Safety Apparel and Accessories is a voluntary standard with guidelines that provide practical instruction regarding both reflective material and garment design to enhance worker visibility. EN ISO presents performance classes of garments and identifies garment types based on expected use settings and work activities being performed.
